The African has been pointed out as the connecting link between the Homo Sapiens and his supposed originator, the Ouran-Outang. My indefatigable crew continued pulling at the oars from morning to night without cessation, or other refreshment than the customary cold rice and water. We passed, without landing, many native villages on each side of the stream; amongst them Rosa and Maharra, mentioned by Major Laing. Several slave towns, --collections of huts solely inhabited by slaves, * and the property of wealthy or warlike Timmanees, --were shown me. As from time to time we came in sight of villages, the dark and wildlooking inhabitants flocked together upon the banks to gaze on the white man, whose own curiosity sympathized with theirs. About five hours above Tombo, a large and apparently important town spread its huts on the summit of the left bank of the river. It afforded the first specimen of negro fortification I had yet witnessed. The low wicker...
